

Becky's Top 10

The Bean Trees by Barbara Kingsolver

Followed by Pigs in Heaven

1,000 White Women by Jim Fergus

(You'll either love it or hate it, according to Amazon reviews)

Memoirs of an Invisible Man by H F Saint

A Fine and Private Place by Peter S Beagle

Also—The Last Unicorn

One for the Money (Janet Evanovich)

The first of many Stephanie Plum novels.

And the Pursuit of Happiness by Maria Kalman

(I would love to have an excuse to actually finish this.)

The Crystal Cave by Mary Stewart

Followed by: The Hollow Hills, The Last Enchantment

The Art of Travel by Alain de Botton

I'm A Stranger Here Myself by Bill Bryson

Also—In A Sunburned Country

Ender's Game by Orson Scot Card

Foundation (1st of many books) by Isaac Asimov

Stranger in a Strange Land by Robert A Heinlein

Station 11 (a recent read, liked it a lot)

The Lovely Bones by Alice Sebold

The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo by Stieg Larson

The Bone Collector by Jeffrey Deaver

The Oddkins by Dean Koontz (a fable for all ages)

Harry Potter (the last 3) by J K Rowling

Percy Jackson and the Olympians (target audience: 12-year-olds)

The Tipping Point by Malcolm Gladwell

Also Freakonomics by Levitt and Dubner

Who Moved My Cheese by Dr Spencer Johnson